When students go abroad and take trips to other locations, they go to friends for advice of where to go and what to do. Our website is designed to provide an outlet for students to submit entries of places they've eaten at, stayed, and things they've done while they were traveling. Despite being a study abroad forum of sorts, it will not have any information on academic institutions. The website is inspired by Yelp, but will provide a smaller niche for students wanting advice from other students.

The home page will show a list of cities to click on, organized by which cities have the best ratings overall. If you click on "London," you will be directed to a page of restaurants, bars, hotels/hostels, and things to do in London. At the bottom of the page, there will be a form to submit a review of one of the places listed, or to add a new entry to the list.
